MURDER
POLICE.
£8000 REWARD.

HEREAS by a notice published in the Government Gazette, bearing date December 1878, a Reward of TWO THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED POUNDS was offered for the capture of four offenders in connection with the late Murders of the Police Force, in the District of Victoria, it is decided to increase the SAID REWARD TO FOUR THOUSAND POUNDS (£4000). Notice is given that a Reward of ONE THOUSAND POUNDS will be paid by the Government for the capture of one for each of the said offenders, and that the said officers are described in Gazette, No. 113, 30th October 1878, at number

Ned Kelly the man — warts and all — the most vivid portrait yet of Australia's immortal outlaw!

Author, Ian Jones, acknowledged Kelly authority, shares with us the results of a lifetime's research. For the first time, Ned Kelly truly emerges as a man — a man who hated conflict yet never escaped it. A private man incapable of being ordinary and unnoticed. A man who was seen, even in his own lifetime, as what he represented rather than what he was, and whose enemies — even more than his allies — helped to make him a legend.

What the critics have said:

Here, at last, the ironclad figure is revealed with striking clarity ...
This is the best Kelly biography by a country mile.

(Bruce Gaunson, the Australian)

Impressive as it is, Mr Jones's knowledge of Kelly detail remains minor when compared with his ability to see the Kelly Outbreak in its deepest, Australian, mythic sense. This is his immense contribution to the Kelly story.

(John Lahey, the Age)

The most detailed and intimate portrait of the outlaw ever written.

(Rod Moran, West Australian)

Ned Kelly: A Short Life stunned me into a new passion for one of Australia's most famous bushrangers.

(Ken Hill, Ballarat Courier)
